

Family Chores Board

So you are ready to share the tasks and chores with your family. Great! Your kids learn about responsibility and planning their week and you get some well deserved free time in return.

To keep track of everyday tasks, their due days and the person responsible for the task, I made a chores board for you and your family similar to the one we use ourselves in our family.

I suggest you print it out, write down the tasks and hang it somewhere where everybody can see it. You can make a task list for every week or you can print it out once (maybe even on bigger paper) and laminate it (or get it laminated) like we did. Use a fine tip whiteboard marker so you can use your family chores board over and over again.

If you want more info on delegating chores to your teenager, check out this blog post:

<https://tailoringthegoodlife.com/why-delegate-boring-chores-to-teenagers>

Greetings,

Nicole

